Continuation of 5. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicants argue that Katinsky does not teach or suggest the ability of the user to select one of the media servers, a selected mode of operation, and an encoding operation. In response, examiner respectfully disagrees since Katinsky clearly discloses that user enables to select mode of operation (i.e., selecting a media object from the play list; col. 12, lines 59-61), select one of the media servers (i.e., appropriate media server; col. 12, lines 63-66), and select an encoding operation (col. 13, line 64 - col. 14, line 8). Furthermore, graphical user interface (GUI) includes features that make encoding process.
